

Women's Studies

for Men & Women

Women in Literature Engl 337A, 339B

First semester a selection of short stories, poems, and plays (by Ibsen, Laurence, Pinter and others) in which woman is of major importance, either as the central experiencing character, or as the embodiment of sexual archetypes and social roles. Second semester will study some of the major women novelists, emphasizing Bronte, Woolf, Lessing, and Atwood. (6 credits) Mon., Wed., Fri. 13:00 - 14:00.

Sociology of Women Soci 506Z

An examination of the status of women in North America. Within an historical and comparative framework consideration will be given to the ideology of sexism, revolution, life cycles, and socio-economic and ethnic dimensions. (6 credits) Time to be announced.

Women (and Men) in the Labour Force Inte 407A, 409B

A theoretical and practical perspective on women in the labour force in North America, with particular emphasis on their present and possible future roles in Canadian institutions. An examination of how Canadian social institutions attempt to effect attitudinal and organizational change among their employees, as well as an attempt to pinpoint the kind of interpersonal skills which might be effective in favoring this. Prerequisite: 3 years work experience or 3rd year standing. (6 credits) Thurs. 19:00 - 21:30.

Women in Science Inte 349B

A survey of the contributions of women to science with an analysis of the historical evolution of women's participation in scientific pursuits. The making of the scientist: an examination of the sociological and psychological factors promoting scientific achievement. A look at the question of sex differences in scientific aptitude. (3 credits) Tues., Thurs. 9:00 - 10:15.

Women in Modern Society Inte 410Z

In the first semester, a survey will be made of some of the major theories in various disciplines attempting to explain the present sex-role balance. In second semester, research into sex differences in gender identity, sexuality, and cognitive development will be reviewed. (6 credits) Tues. 19:00 - 20:30.

Women in Christianity Inte 321A

A course for men and women concerned with the spiritual aspects of human liberation. To what extent did Christianity promote misogyny, to what extent did it contribute to woman's gradual rise to a more respected position in modern times? Clarification of contemporary questions on the full equality of men and women in the light of this historical background. (3 credits) Mon., Wed., Fri. 13:00 - 13:50.

Advanced Seminar in Women's Studies Inte 510Z

First semester will be devoted to the experience of Canadian women, their history, their economic role, and their literature. Special attention will be given to native women and to working class and immigrant women. Second semester will concentrate on sociobiology: the evolutionary principals modifying group behavior, family organization and sex-role behavior. Senior students and faculty are invited to participate. Tues. 12:00 - 14:00.

For further information please contact

Kathy Anderson
Secretary
Interdisciplinary Studies
Loyola Campus
482-0320 ext 477

or Allannah Furlong
Coordinator
Women's Studies
Loyola Campus
482-0320 ext 772